It's Mobile — Pilot gets INSIDE — Guns Swivel — Turret Turns

Imagine your thrill when you get inside this authentic replica of the mighty "General Sherman" tank and power forward to adventure. This six foot hunk of equipment is so realistic with its mighty cannon, swiveling machine gun, simulated treads, and other authentic tank features that its bound to bring squeals of delight from any young warrior. And, when you and a pal get right down into the fully equipped control room and close the cockpit cover — you can bet you're using your mobile power to devastate every imaginary enemy in your path. Sturdily constructed for long periods of fun, it's bound to bring more thrills and adventure than you've ever known from a toy. So don't delay! Act now. Only $4.98. Because of its gigantic size, we are forced to ask for an additional 63¢ shipping charges.

Twenty - Three Skidoo!

Bob walked slower and slower as he got nearer to the junior high school where he studied. He was thin and wished that he was huskier. His pants weren't quite long enough, he knew, and his clothes just didn't look right on him.

"That's only one of my troubles though," Bob said to himself. He enumerated his shortcomings as he slouched along, mumbling a little. "I'm not heavy enough for the football team, I'm on the second string baseball team, and I'm not tall enough for basketball!"

He laughed and a girl passing gave him a startled look. "I can't dance, when I talk to a girl I get tongue-tied, and I blush if one of them even looks at me! If I was a big brain, I could be a book-worm — but I'm only an average student!"

Bob thought of the faults and he couldn't help laughing. "I'm a real mess!"

He didn't realize he'd said it aloud until he heard a giggle and looked up. He'd been walking faster than he thought; he was outside the school and right in the middle of a bunch of chattering females!

Bob felt himself starting to blush and suddenly he got mad. He was tired of being embarrassed all the time! The girls were snickering, safe in the crowd.

Bob had a couple of tricks. He crossed his eyes, opening them wide, and snarled at them! "Shoo! Beat it!"

They ran for one surprised second, then they ran! Bob laughed until his sides hurt. He was still chuckling as he found his seat in his home room. He had a few minutes he knew he should spend reading history but he didn't.

Instead, Bob figured a few things out for himself. He knew other boys got along all right. He knew his clothes weren't really bad and he knew that his sisters would teach him to dance if he asked. In fact, all the faults he'd listed would disappear if he, Bob, decided that he wanted them gone.

With his mind made up, Bob had time to pay more attention in class. He surprised his teachers and himself with how much he really knew. He decided right then that maybe he wouldn't have to stay an average student all his life either.

But clothes were a problem. His folks could not run out and buy him a new wardrobe just because he wanted one. He'd have to dig one up himself. Clothes with style, striped sport jackets and stuff like that. That made him think of something. His father's trunks in the attic had a jacket like that, a zany striped jacket. Narrow shoulders and narrow lapels were in fashion too!

Bob didn't ask anyone. He knew his dad wouldn't mind. He dug out a fancy waistcoat, something like a vest, some narrow-legged slacks, and a beautiful many-colored scarf! The next morning, in his own room, he donned the slacks, the fancy waist-coat, and the red, white, and blue blazer jacket. Then, he slid a snazzy 1930 vintage cap on his head, twirled the scarf around his neck, and went down to breakfast.

His mother was pouring his milk when he walked into the kitchen. She saw him and stared. While she stared, the milk ran over the top and poured on the table, thence to the floor. His mother didn't notice.

"Bob! Where did . . . You look exactly the way your father did when he was courting me! You look marvelous!"

Bob smiled smugly and turned, letting her admire the ensemble. "It is rather snazzy, isn't it? Mom, would you do me a favor?"

His mother knew it was serious so she pulled out a chair and sat down with him while he started breakfast. "Of course, dear! What is it?"

Bob was uneasy. "I'm going to wear these clothes. Dad won't mind. But I've heard you and dad use slang from way back in the dark ages. Brief me, huh? Tell me the real cool jive talk you cats used back in the early days!"

His mother laughed but she obliged. Bob took it all in as he drank his milk, and ate his eggs. He had to run for it or be late when he finished.

School had just started when he arrived. With a sinking heart, he realized that it was auditorium morning and all the kids would be there. He felt like turning around and going home again but he forced himself to go in, down the corridor, to the auditorium door. He heard the principal calling the roll as he opened the door. His own name was echoing as he stepped inside.

"Robert White!"

"Here, sir!" Bob called out, his voice firm and loud. All heads turned his way and there was a snicker, then another, and they all laughed. But they liked what they saw. The principal especially. And he knew they'd all be digging around in the trunks to get on the bandwagon.

My name is Charles Atlas. Of course, I can't promise that you'll win the title of "World's Most Perfectly Developed Man," as I did. But I do say that I believe I can make a mighty powerful He-Man out of you — in a very short time. In fact, you can prove it to yourself — without risking a penny. And I have good reason for believing I can do it. Because during the last 30 years I have turned many thousands of weaklings — fellows who were ashamed of their bodies — into beautifully-proportioned human dynamos of strength, energy, and endless endurance . . . with the kind of muscular development that needn't take "back talk" from any one. My big free book will tell you how my secret Dynamic Tension may be able to do such a job for you. Where shall I send your copy? There's not a bit of cost obligation on your part. So mail the coupon now.
